

The axes hide compositional differences between growth models

Dots = countries, diamond = group mean. Two groups can share an axis score while differing on the parts that make it up.

